The excitement was palpable in Mount Morgan this year as the community came together for the Gold Rush Family Festival held on Friday, 17 July . Held in conjunction with the highly anticipated CQ Crane Hire Gold Rush Hill Sprint Street Parade, the event has been hailed as a resounding success.

For those looking to relive the moments of the afternoon, keep an eye out for the upcoming edition of the Mount Morgan Argus. The next issue will feature a full, comprehensive wrap-up of both the Family Festival and the Hill Sprint.

Community Spirit Shines at Mount Morgan's 2026 NAIDOC Celebration

The top oval at Mount Morgan State High School was filled with energy and community spirit on July 3, as the town came together to celebrate NAIDOC Week. The event, spearheaded by Bidgerdii Community Health Services, proved to be a resounding success, fostering new connections and highlighting the power of local collaboration. The celebration grew from a simple idea into a significant community gathering. According to Neil Hassall, Program Coordinator with Bidgerdii's "Nurturing Spirits" program, the organisation had originally planned a pre-NAIDOC event. However, upon learning that wider 2026 celebrations were not proceeding, Bidgerdii stepped up to ensure the important cultural occasion was still recognized, watching the event grow "organically" into a full-scale celebration. A major highlight of the day was the highly competitive Four on Four basketball tournament. The competition drew an impressive 12 teams from across Rockhampton and Mount Morgan, providing a thrilling spectacle for spectators and participants alike. For Bidgerdii, the day was about much more than just a single event; it was a opportunity to build vital support networks within the Mount Morgan community.

"The day was an icebreaker for Bidgerdii to deliver programs within the High School," Mr. Hassall explained, noting that the organisation is looking forward to future engagement with local students.

Mr. Hassall was quick to praise the partners who made the day possible, emphasizing that the event's success relied on strong local alliances.

"The partnerships with Mount Morgan State High School and Heritage Minerals were fantastic," said Mr. Hassall. "We received tremendous support from Ben Lodewikus and Eloise Steinberger, which was vital in making the day such a positive experience."

While Bidgerdii was proud to take the lead in organizing this year's festivities, Mr. Hassall indicated that the organisation views this as a model for future community-led initiatives. He noted that while Bidgerdii remains committed to the spirit of NAIDOC and would be happy to support future events in Mount Morgan, they envision stepping into a supporting role in the years to come, encouraging local community leadership to continue the momentum established this July.

MAD's Next Generation of Youth Leadership

When a young person walks into a Young People Making a Difference Inc (MAD) camp on a Friday afternoon, they are often visibly terrified. The room is quiet, walls are up, and phones are tightly held. By Sunday afternoon, those same individuals frequently refuse to leave, tears are shed, and a tight-knit community is formed.

This dramatic 48-hour transformation is the pulse of the regional Queensland youth initiative. Founded in Yeppoon in 2012, MAD operates on a distinct core model: it is a peer-led program run for young people, by young people.

Today, a new generation of leaders is stepping up to guide this movement. Hailing from Mount Morgan State High School (MMSHS), student leaders Zac Dobson, Justin Berry, and Ykeyta Tull are transitioning from past program participants into the frontline support system for Central Queensland's vulnerable youth.

Traditional institutional youth support can often feel clinical, rigid, and disconnected. For these three student leaders, the "by youth, for youth" philosophy is not a marketing tagline—it is a functional necessity for breaking down walls.

"It creates a more comfortable environment," explains Justin Berry, who serves as the 2026 MMSHS School Captain. "It can be challenging talking to an older person about certain topics. I think young people running MAD is crucial."

This structural parity changes the dynamic of the room. Rather than listening to a lecture, participants look at facilitators who are their own age, face the same regional challenges, and speak the same language.

"Young people are all for young people," says Zac Dobson.

"Without the young people, their stories and guidance, there would be no program."

The program operates within a strict, uninterrupted weekend timeline from Friday afternoon to Sunday afternoon. This specific 48-hour block is meticulously structured to navigate the psychological shift from isolation to community.

The immediate focus on Friday night is creating a strict "safe space." According to Zac, this relies on a non-negotiable baseline of confidentiality - everything spoken about remains strictly at camp.

Justin highlights an immediate environmental shift that occurs on Friday evening—the mandatory removal of mobile devices. In an era dominated by digital anxiety, this creates a critical barrier against external pressures.

"Social media is a major problem for the youth, specifically teens," Justin said.

"MAD has the rule of no phones for the 48 hours, and I think it helps to give people a break from social media, even if it is for a short time."

Yketa Tull emphasizes that Friday night's simpler introductory sessions are foundational stepping stones.

"All the sessions we do on Friday night help us prepare for the Saturday and Sunday sessions and help build the safe place that we hold our home of MAD," she says.

The compression of time accelerates the bonding process. While participants regularly arrive wanting to catch the first bus home, the collective vulnerability of the weekend completely alters their perspective by Sunday.

MAD camps do not shy away from severe issues; sessions openly tackle suicide awareness, family breakdown, and addiction. For teenage leaders, carrying the emotional weight of these topics requires significant personal maturity.

"I've been a trainee for over a year now, and I still sometimes struggle with my emotional preparedness," admits Zac. "But I know that I'm there for the participants, so I feel it's my responsibility to step up and support them."

This commitment to addressing heavy topics fills a critical gap in regional areas like Central Queensland, where serious youth issues are frequently minimized or ignored entirely.

"I think the biggest challenge is the fact that some people believe the challenge doesn't exist," Zac says.

"MAD is very good at bringing to light some of the challenges that don't get spoken about in today's society."

Ykeyta adds that flexibility is key to remaining relevant to what youth encounter in daily life, noting that the entire curriculum continuously alters based on real-time participant feedback.

"MAD does evaluations after every camp to see what they can change," Ykeyta says. "The camp layout has changed five times directly from the young people's evaluations."

In 2015, MAD's operational model was recognized with the Queensland Child Safety Award for Youth Participation. To maintain the 97 percent helpfulness rating the camps have averaged over the last decade, the Mount Morgan cohort utilizes precise techniques to ensure no participant remains an isolated bystander.

During group sessions, leaders purposefully ensure that new participants are given the opportunity to answer questions first, establishing early validation.

In physical or group activities, leaders actively monitor the perimeter of the room to gently draw disengaged or anxious participants into the circle.

Utilizing personal vulnerability to disarm the room.

"I was very nervous on my first camp, so I know exactly how it feels," says Ykeyta.

"I tell them that by the end of the weekend they will love it."

"Myth, Magic and Mystery" comes to the Mount

'Myth, Magic and Mystery' is a loosely curated retrospective for Baree local Nicholai von Tonslamann (pictured). Although he's exhibited in Sydney and overseas, this is his first solo exhibition in Central Queensland

When Nicholai went to choose a title for his first solo exhibition in the Mount, these three M's seemed to encompass almost all the subject matter of his paintings both past and current. Nicholai von Tonslamann is no stranger to myth. His long fascination with Greek, Ancient Egyptian, German, Christian and Islamic and Roman mythology echoes throughout many of his artworks.

Unlike our grandparents, many of us are not familiar with these

Justin echoes this approach: "I like to use laughter to make people comfortable... just to lighten their spirits."

The ultimate objective of the training pipeline is to create a self-sustaining ecosystem of support.

The leadership unit functions as a tiered family network. While Ykeyta, Justin and Zac rely heavily on one another, they are backed by an integrated tier of senior and graduated leaders.

The regional impact of this network is growing rapidly. Ykeyta points to the expanding footprint of the program within the school community.

"We started with an amount of seven kids from Mount Morgan, and now we have about 20 people coming from the Mount Morgan area."

As these student leaders look toward future camps and a wider national vision of securing funding to make the program free across Australia, their immediate focus remains local.

mythical stories, except in movies and video games. This exhibition, sponsored by VisualArtists4714 and the Regional Arts Development Fund [RADF], a joint partnership between Rockhampton Regional Council and Arts Queensland, is our chance to learn more.

So taken with myth is the artist that he created a fully illustrated 'Book of Ifus'. This is a tale of innocence via a winged satyr character who carries the light of reason into different cultures and encounters the world of reality in which he is perceived as a threat. This enchanting book will be available for order during the exhibition.

Magic is another element the artist enjoys including in his works. Magic often provokes a personal response; deeper magic and illusion can capture subconscious feelings we might have in response to elements arranged in a dreamlike composition.

At first glance Nicholai's beautifully rendered landscape and portrait compositions hark back to the Romantic era in which nature is glorious in its wild state. Look a little closer and you might recognise a more disturbing element which is intentional; themes such as calm before the storm and broken tranquility reference the subconscious in a similar way to Surrealism (think Salvador Dali). Just like those artists, Freudian imagery is used alongside the mythical elements to represent a fantasy world of nightmare and dreamscapes. Rather than render a realistic portrayal, the artist goes beyond realism to create mystery. His paintings all tell a story, but not necessarily the same story as seen by the viewer. You are encouraged to interpret the images as your own story.

Many of us have enjoyed the artworks by Nicholai exhibited in the 'Mine all Mine' and 'Camino' group exhibitions. Now is the chance to be immersed in a mythical, magical and mysterious experience at the Baree School of Arts between 22-27 Aug. Opening night is from 5.30 pm on Saturday, 22 August.

The exhibition is Adults Only. There will be free fig leaves at the door so that sensitive people can safely obscure any parts of an artwork that they find offensive while they enjoy the rest of it.

They are actively translating their training—ranging from public speaking to learning when to step back and listen—back into Mount Morgan State High School.

For these three, the work is a direct continuation of the care they once received.

"It's not so much a legacy to me," Zac reflects.

"I'm not a leader to continue a legacy. I'm a leader to help young people like the young people helped me."

THE MOUNT GETS “FLOWER POWER”

Mount Morgan's local business scene has received a vibrant injection of colour following the launch of Flower Power Florist, a new boutique floral home studio that opened its doors on 25 March. Driven by a desire to bring uniquely styled, fresh arrangements directly to the doorsteps of locals, the business is already capturing the hearts of the tight-knit community.

Operating from a home studio rather than a traditional main-street storefront, the business relies heavily on digital spaces to connect with residents. Social media and online ordering platforms serve as a 24/7 window to the world, allowing busy locals to browse daily designs, view behind-the-scenes creations, and coordinate custom requests at their own convenience.

“Mount Morgan has such a wonderful, tight-knit community spirit, and I felt there was a real opportunity to introduce a dedicated boutique floral home studio here,” said business owner, Sophie Langley (pictured above).

“Launching Flower Power Florist was all about bringing fresh, uniquely styled arrangements right to the doorsteps of locals, celebrating the charm of our town through beautiful design,” Sophie said.

The response in the opening weeks has been incredibly warm. Focusing heavily on freshness and seasonality, the studio has found that locals are already gravitating toward vibrant, rustic everyday jars and seasonal wrapped bouquets.

According to Sophie, “just because” gestures and birthday celebrations have been particularly popular, proving that Mount Morgan residents love looking after one another and spreading joy.

The studio's design philosophy centres on a beautiful balance of both regional and exotic flora.

Greenery and hardy, stunning flowers are sourced from local regional growers to ensure the plants are perfectly acclimated to the local climate, which naturally extends their vase life while supporting the local economy. To add a touch of distinctive luxury, premium exotic flowers are bridged into the designs directly from Brisbane.

However, running a boutique home studio independently brings unique logistical hurdles.

Sophie said the biggest challenge was balancing the intensive studio time required to meticulously craft each arrangement with the time it took to personally deliver them across the local area, ensuring they arrive looking flawless despite the regional heat and humidity.

Despite the balancing act, the personalization of a home studio allows for bespoke “storytelling” bouquets. Customers can request specific flowers that hold deeply personal or historical meanings, such as blooms that evoke memories of a grandmother's garden.

This intimate connection turns every transaction into a heartfelt exchange, reinforcing the studio's role as a meaningful contributor to the town's social fabric.

Looking ahead, there are big plans to weave the business further into the fabric of the town.

Sophie is eager to collaborate with other local businesses and organizations, expressing a desire to partner with local cafes for table arrangements and work alongside the historical society to add timeless floral beauty to heritage events.

There is also strong interest in hosting floral arrangement workshops and “sip and stems” nights to engage the town's thriving creative community.

With major floral holidays requiring advanced coordination with suppliers, forward planning and encouraging locals to pre-order will remain a priority.

Reflecting on the future, Sophie looks forward to growing deep roots in the area.

A year from now, success for the business means being established as Mount Morgan's trusted, go-to florist, known for unmatched freshness, unique artistic designs, and lasting relationships with regional growers and community flower lovers alike.

Ultimately, she hopes to see every home in town brightened by her signature, thoughtfully curated, and joy-filled floral creations.

COUNCIL INITIATIVES

Rockhampton Regional Council is inviting residents to get involved in two major initiatives aimed at improving community wellbeing and environmental sustainability.

Sustainability in Action Competition

In celebration of World Environment Day, the Council launched its annual "Sustainability in Action" photo competition. Residents and schools are encouraged to share photos showcasing the simple, daily actions they take to live more sustainably.

The Council is looking for snapshots of everyday efforts, such as composting, growing your own produce, using sustainable transport, reducing plastic waste, or creating wildlife-friendly habitats.

Submissions are open now across a variety of categories, ranging from "Fighting food waste" and "Being water wise" to "Reusing and upcycling."

• Entries close at 5pm, Friday, 7 August 2026.

Categories include - Planting and caring for native plants, reusing and upcycling, encouraging wildlife and habitat, being water wise, recycling right with yellow lid bins and green gift giving and festivities.

Visit Council's website at www.rrc.qld.gov.au for more information.

Discounted Pet Desexing Services

To support responsible pet ownership, the Council has contributed $5,000 to the RSPCA Queensland's "Desex My Pet" campaign (formerly Operation Wanted).

This initiative partners with local veterinary clinics to offer residents a 20 per cent discount on desexing services.

Desexing prevents unplanned litters, reduces the number of animals entering shelters, and helps protect pets from life-threatening health issues.

You can register online at the RSPCA Queensland website to receive a discount code, then book your appointment with a participating local veterinary clinic.

• The campaign runs from 1 June to 31 August 2026.

For more information, contact Council Customer Service at 4932 9000.

LIBRARY NEWS

Uniting Care Homework Club @ Mount Morgan Library

With Term 3 now well underway, some parents and carers may be finding it challenging to support children with school projects, assignments, reading tasks and homework.

The new UnitingCare Homework Club has recently launched at Mount Morgan Library, offering free homework support every Wednesday and Friday from 3.15pm to 4.30pm during school terms.

The club provides a friendly, relaxed environment where children can receive assistance with their learning, build confidence and develop skills for tackling challenging subjects and topics. While older students focus on their homework and study, younger siblings can enjoy LEGO and other play-based activities in the library space.

Come along, boost your confidence and take the stress out of homework with the UnitingCare Homework Club at Mount Morgan Library. We look forward to seeing you there.

Fix Your Car, Truck or Bike

Has the recent CQ Crane Gold Rush Hill Sprint inspired you to roll up your sleeves and tackle some repairs on that old car, truck or motorbike in the shed? Your local library has just the resource to help.

Haynes Manuals All Access provides free access for library members to an extensive collection of online repair manuals covering cars, motorcycles, marine vehicles, tractors and snowmobiles. The platform offers up-to-date information for a wide range of makes and models, including routine maintenance, servicing procedures and common repairs.

Not yet a member? Visit any Rockhampton Regional Library branch, including Mount Morgan Library at 31 Morgan Street, Mount Morgan, to find out how to join. Membership is free, and staff can help you access this valuable digital resource.

If you prefer printed manuals, the Rockhampton Southside Library also holds a collection of physical repair manuals available for loan. Titles include trusted publications from Gregory, Haynes, Clymer, Seloc and Chilton. Items can be reserved and collected from any of the four Rockhampton Regional Library branches.

TRASH & TREASURE RECOGNISES VOLUNTEERS

Our community Op Shop has grown unbelievably over the past two years.

Because of the generosity of the public with your donations and support, this year we have been able to give financial support to a number of groups in town and we hope that this contribution is of some help to them.

Each week we are joined by some of the grade 10 students who, as a part of their curriculum, are working towards understanding what it means to be a volunteer. Their help has been saving us hours of work and is very much appreciated.

At a recent volunteers meeting and lunch, which was attended by 20 volunteers the Flynn electorate 2026 Volunteer Certificates were presented to Carol Stock, Fred Otto, Candice Johnson, David Boon and Rebekah Suter.

All our volunteers deserve to be recognised as they are dedicated and work so hard to be able to offer this service to the community. As only five certificates are allowed, these five stood out.

Submitted by Carol Stock 0488 660 549 and Alison Gilewski 0418 744 188.

MOUNT MORGAN CITIZEN'S CLUB SOLDIERS' ROOMS & ART PRECINCT

Next Exhibition - Note the push back of the date, the exhibition will run from the opening night on Saturday, 26 September – 18 December. "Every Body, Every Mind, Every Sense – No Barriers".

What does this mean to you? In the lead up to our next exhibition, we have been doing research into the triumphs and disappointments that people living with disability have to face every day.

It has been incredibly eye opening how much navigating a world designed for able bodied people can impose so much difficulty on so many, and we hope to shine a light on that with a dynamic projected visual display on the evening.

You cannot be what you cannot see, so representation is incredibly important, and the montage will showcase feats of strength, courage, resilience in extraordinary, but also everyday moments, and beautiful personalities just sharing joy.

All Artists are invited to exhibit, both those without disability, and those with, to express the variety of experiences from different viewpoints. Artworks to be submitted for exhibition by Wednesday, 22 September. For Exhibition entry forms please email mountmorganartsprecinct@gmail.com or call into the gallery at 78 East Street.

Mount Morgan Soldiers Rooms.

Community Partnership – What is this? We have been tasked with the opportunity to recruit 10 potential disability support workers.

Our Club pays for the NDIS Worker Screening Clearance card (previously Yellow Card) and Mable provides the modules at no cost to you to enable you to commence work.

You are under no obligation to work under Mable, however if you do, you set your price, are covered under their insurance, and have access to the local client base through their portal.

It is an opportunity to work locally, supplement an income if already working, or gain employment if not, doing as much or as little hours as you choose.

This initiative is about keeping the money in our community, saves NDIS losing funding efficacy to travel, and allowing clients to choose someone they may be familiar with or not, from their own community. Intake has commenced so please call 0411 865 621 if this is of interest to you.

Meetings - Mount Morgan Citizens Club Inc General Meeting on the last Sunday of each month at 10.30am at the Soldiers Rooms, 18 Morgan Street. Newcomers welcome.

Hall bookings – Call Angela on 0419 605 662.

EVERY BODY, EVERY SENSE - NO BARRIERS

6pm 26th September - 18th December

Celebrating creativity without barriers: a showcase of artworks made by, and for people with sensory, intellectual and physical disabilities. Through diverse forms of artistic expression, we seek to foster empathy and mutual understanding of the daily experiences, challenges and triumphs faced by individuals living with disability, uniting in accessible, multi sensory ways that celebrate creativity, resilience and shared humanity.

DEE RIVER OLDIES

As it falls in the calendar, this week we have the third Tuesday being the 21 July and the fourth Wednesday the 22 July 2026 the day after.

So it is a busy week with our monthly meeting on the Tuesday starting at 2 pm. Then, we have our morning tea on Wednesday 22 July 2026 starting at 10.00 am. Both are held in St Mary's Hall, Gordon Street, Mount Morgan. (Behind the Anglican Church).

Come along and join us at our meeting and morning tea.

The cost for the morning tea is $5. We will have musical bingo with the 'Christmas in July' theme. It is always a fun morning.

There will be a lucky door prize as well as our raffle with the popular breakfast tray to be won.

As we are affiliated with 60 & Better in Rockhampton from the 1 July 2026 members are asked to renew their membership form.

There is no cost to be a member. You are welcome to join if you are aged over 50 years old.

Our next bus trip is planned for Sunday, 13 September, 2026. We are going to the Calliope Markets with lunch at the Mount Larcom Hotel.

The cost for the day is $60. The bus leaves the Morgan Street bus stop at 8.00 am.

Please put your name down at our July Morning Tea to secure your seat. Your money must be paid at our August 2026 Morning Tea. We need the numbers so we can run the bus.

Check out 'Save the Date' on the back page of the Argus for upcoming dates of our meetings and morning teas. Stay happy and healthy.

MOB CAREER YARN UP WHICH WAY? YOUR WAY!

YOUR PATHWAY. YOUR FUTURE. YOUR WAY.

Mt Morgan

Ochre Social Performance invites mob who are interested in future work opportunities linked to Central Queensland energy projects to register their interest.

Scan the QR Code to register your interest today!

Proudly supported by Powerlink Queensland

Ochre wants to hear from mob about your career aspirations and future life skills and training opportunities you are interested in. This will ensure mob can help shape what comes next and be connected into opportunities.

This will help shape:

- ✓ Life skills and wellbeing support
- ✓ Life goals and aspirations
- ✓ Pathways for your future
- ✓ Training and skills
- ✓ Work and career opportunities
- ✓ Confidential survey to have your say

GOOD TO KNOW

The purpose of this project is for Ochre to build a register of people who are interested in future work opportunities linked to the Central Queensland energy industry which will be shared with project developers, asset owners, and contractors, including Powerlink Queensland's principal contractors on the Central Queensland transmission projects.
